

Familial FTD Peer Support Group

Every third Monday of the month from 4:30-5:30 ET via Zoom

People with a known genetic form of FTD in their family often face emotional challenges, whether they opt to undergo genetic testing or not. Our peer support group offers a safe place to meet others who understand based on their own family and experiences. Group members can share concerns and worries, and openly discuss some of the distinct emotional challenges for a person who knows they and other relatives may be at risk. If you have a biological relative with a confirmed genetic cause for FTD, this group may be right for you, whether you have decided to test, remain undecided, or perhaps you do not plan to have genetic testing.

Persons at Genetic Risk Peer Support Group

Every first Wednesday of the month from 5-6 PM ET via Zoom

People with a confirmed genetic variant after testing, with a result indicating a personal risk of developing FTD may face unique emotional challenges. Our peer support group offers community, connection, and a safe place, where members can share their experiences living with and managing their feelings around their genetic risk. Group members will meet others with similar experiences, share ways to effectively cope with anxiety when it becomes overwhelming, and gain deeper insight into their own emotional responses.

If interested, contact the AFTD HelpLine at 1.866.507.7222 or info@theaftd.org.

